May your love be the foundation on which you build your life together. May it bring you joy, comfort, and strength when needed. And may it continue to grow stronger with each passing day. Love is a fundamental aspect of a successful marriage. Maurois wisely states that "love one another and you will be happy." Listening to each other is crucial in any relationship, as Joseph Leung reminds us, saying "the first duty of love is to listen." Paul Tillich emphasizes the importance of teamwork, highlighting that the greatest marriages are built on mutual respect, admiration, and love. Fawn Weaver suggests that true love isn't about gazing at each other but rather looking outward together in the same direction. Antoine de Saint-Exupéry reminds us that happy marriages begin when we marry the ones we love, and they blossom when we love the ones we marry. Tom Mullen believes that love is that condition where another person's happiness is essential to our own. Robert A. Heinlein states that there is no remedy for love but to love more. Henry David Thoreau advises treating all disasters as incidents and none of the incidents as disasters. Sir Harold Nicolson reminds us that a successful marriage is about cherishing the love we share, regardless of time's passage. In a lighter tone, Alfred A. Montapert suggests always remembering to fight with the two words "Yes Dear." Unknown wisdoms highlight the importance of never going to bed mad and the challenges of a good marriage being like a casserole. Phyllis Diller offers humorous advice on how to maintain a healthy relationship. Zsa Zsa Gabor humorously reflects on the responsibilities that come with marrying, while other witty remarks poke fun at the realities of married life. Ogden Nash provides practical wisdom, suggesting that when we're wrong, we should admit it, and when we're right, we should shut up. May your future be bright with a generation of children, good health, and long life. May you have land without rent, a child each year, and return to the homeland of Ireland. May your blessings outnumber the shamrocks that grow and may trouble avoid you wherever you go. May this moment bring fulfillment through the days and years ahead. May God's protection and love abide within your home, in the hearts of all who dwell there. May you have endless love, plenty of money, and many friends. May your health be yours to keep, and may God send many blessings your way. May your troubles be fewer, and your blessings more. May only happiness come through your door. May you have warm words on a cold evening, a full moon on a dark night, and the road downhill lead directly to your door. Here's to the groom with his beautiful bride, and here's to the bride with her rare and lovely groom! May peace and plenty bless your world with joy that lasts forever. May you be as happy as a leprechaun with his gold, and may the songs of love never grow old.
