I prefer the old Brave dark theme (before version 1.19) to the current Brave dark theme and the official Chrome dark themes, so I created a separate theme file based on the old Brave dark theme. This theme uses the exact same colors as Braveout of the box, complete with a dark address bar. I recreated the new tab background with a 1440p gradient that supports display up to 8K (at 300% scaling, which is realistic). This is the closest thing to reality without editing the browser's source code. Because people keep asking: It's not an app or extension, it's a theme. It changes some of your browser colors, but it cannot change page colors or add buttons to your browser. To remove a theme from Chrome: 1. Go to your browser's settings page. 2. Scroll down to the Appearance section (here you can go to chrome://settings/appearance). 3. At the top of the Appearance section, there should be a theme line listing your current theme. 4. In this line, click the Restore Defaults button. The process may be slightly different for other browsers. The theme removal process is entirely controlled by your browser and there is nothing I can do to make it easier.
